A Murderer Gets His Man

A group of five men were winding up a long card game in the back room of a New York City candy store. One was Angelo Pezzulo, a youth with a police record. As the game concluded, two men entered, one with a revolver and the five up with their faces to the wall.

One gunman approached and turned the men about one by one, closely examining them. When he reached Pezzulo, he looked even more carefully, and then shot the young man thru the head. He took another good look to see that he had not made a mistake, and then the two men fled. The murderer had got his man.

Thus the reputation formerly held by the Northwest Mounted Police has been captured by the underworld.
The "mounties" still get their man, but so also do the gangster gunmen.
If as much could be said for our American law enforcing service, the odds would be even, but unfortunately only the federal officers come anywhere near the ideal of getting their man.

When gangsters agree that an enemy must pay the extreme penalty for his sins against the underworld code, somebody is assigned to get him.
That means not simply that the offender is to be warned not to repeat his wrongdoing, or that he is to be arrested and have his guilt proved at the expense of the gang; it does mean that he is to be put where any further consideration of his case will be unnecessary, that he is to pay for his sins by the shedding of his own blood.

Try Raising Skunks

According to estimates of values made by M. G. Calvin of Clarence, Mo., farmers would do well to add skunk-raising to their other lines, or at least they might produce some variety of fur-bearing animal, just to eke out the family income. Fur prices have so increased, Mr. Calvin says, that a skunk hide will bring a farmer more than a bushel of wheat. Now if the farmer can raise more skunks to the acre than bushels of wheat, or even as many as he would be "sitting pretty." But it's a dangerous game, and the consequences of dealing with skunks may not be altogether pleasant. A muskrat hide will bring more than a bushel of wheat, a possum hide more than 15 bushels of corn, a civet-cat hide will bring more than a gallon of cream, a skunk hide is worth as much as a bushel of wheat. Coon skins will bring about as much as the average case of eggs, and a good mink will get a check equal to the price of a 200-pound hog.

"Fur prices have increased this year more than any other commodity from the farming areas," Calvin pointed out, "and they are, strictly speaking, the only non-essential fur-bearing animal. And, strange to say, there is a bigger surplus in furs than in anything else we buy. I don't mean to say that all the farmers are trapping fur, but there is a larger number this year than usual, and they are being well paid for their trouble."

Hitler Cracks Whip

A fascist grip on Germany that outrivals the iron hand of Mussolini in Italy has been clamped down by Hitler this week in the announcement of the new law regulating relations between employer and employee.
Having not the tact to use the velvet glove, Hitler shows the mailed fist to German workmen, and tells them they have no voice, but are in honor bound to keep German industry going.
The owner of the shop is designated as supreme in his own domain, altho he is charged with looking after the welfare of his workers. He may even see to their spiritual comfort if he is so inclined. Workers are represented by a council of their own number, all of whom must be Nazis, chosen by secret ballot from a list submitted to them by the owner of the plant.

It has long been known that fascism aims at regimentation of labor.
Italy has chosen to bring this about rather gradually; but Hitler lays his cards on the table and conceals no aces in his sleeve. The worker in Germany is reduced to the status of an automaton, who lives, moves and has his being at the behest of his employer. Even his soul may be regulated, and the time may come when the German state will say whether or not he may possess a soul.

Strikes and lockouts are forbidden by Hitler, which is of course a regular principle in the fascist program and may be considered one of its good points. While it makes the worker a robot, it also puts the employer under stiff regulations. Under fascism Italy has found it necessary to guarantee interest and dividends in an effort to preserve the profit system. Hitler has not yet reached that stage.

But his control of German humanity is more complete than is Mussolini's over the Italians. Hitler will be able to make the German people do more of his bidding because they have been trained to observe discipline. How he intends to use Germany in working out world relations is a disturbing problem for the future.

Low Rents Essential

It is encouraging to discover that the Public Works Administration is insisting that slum clearance projects now under consideration be devised so that the lowest possible rents be charged in the completed buildings.
An elaborate housing program was devised for one large manufacturing city, and it was figured that the new apartments would rent for approximately $7 a room. PWA authorities notified local authorities that this figure was too high, and that federal funds would not be forthcoming unless a revision was made to bring the rentals down.

This is extremely sensible. A scale of $7 a room would make a five-room apartment cost $35 a month, and there are plenty of people who simply cannot afford to spend that much money.

Furthermore, they are precisely the people who occupy slum quarters, and whom housing programs are designed to help. There would be little sense in replacing slum dwellings if the new quarters were too expensive for their prospective occupants to use.

Deflation Proposals

Dr. O. M. W. Sprague, the eminent Harvard economist, in his series of articles for the North American Newspaper Alliance proposes some experiments in deflation that may seem as radical as recent inflation proposals.
He suggests, as a help to general industry, that railroad freight rates be reduced on many commodities; that big industries revolve downward their fixed assets; that business in general stop trying to maintain "all of the various obligations and balance sheet valuations of the Coolidge era of prosperity; that business "cannot have it both ways;" that since 1929 there has been less liquidation of indebtedness than has characterized analogous situations in the past; that it is out of the question now to seek an escape through receiverships and bankruptcies; that heavily encumbered individuals, corporations and municipalities must be safeguarded; that "a lowering of interest charges, and in some instances reducing the principal and debts would seem to be sound business policy."

Undoubtedly it is true that business "cannot have it both ways." One way out of the depression was to continue the deflation until everything was deflated uniformly. The alternative was inflation. The first method was "sound" economics, but during the treatment the patient might starve to death. The second was pleasanter and easier, but the patient might die of an overdose.
It may be that the best cut is a judicious combination of the two—deflation made uniform, plus moderate inflation. But it is probably easier to keep business moderate than to persuade business interests and investors to submit to the deflationary measures for which Professor Sprague ask.

Several Shaken Up as Car Hits Truck

White Hall, Jan. 18.—Several persons were slightly injured in a truck accident near the entrance to the White Hall cemetery on Route Three south of White Hall Wednesday evening, when a truck, said to be owned by Charles Hayes of White Hall, stalled on the pavement at the foot of the hill.

Earl Crocker and his wife were enroute from Springfield and came down the hill and were upon the stalled truck before he could stop. The impact threw two men off the truck which was loaded with hay, breaking the windshield in the Crocker truck.
Mrs. Crocker's face was cut by the glass and Mr. Crocker received a small cut on his throat.

The Crockers have been getting out saw logs on the Roy Campbell farm in the High street neighborhood and are located there for the present.
Grant Phillips of Belltown, one of the men thrown from the top of the stalled truck was badly bruised and the other man, whose name was not learned, was also bruised though not serious. They were treated by Dr.
W. H. Garrison.

Mrs. Dyer's mother. The pattern is "Jacob's Ladder."

Devotions and a business session were held during the afternoon. Mrs.
E. A. Piper presided at the piano durunder the direction of Mrs. Carrie Short and Mrs. L. O. Goodrich. A topsy survey party will be held next Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Windt and Mrs. Daley with trict held their regular monthly meeting with Linton Lodge No. 401 Thursday night at Waverly. There was a large attendance of members present and work in the third rank was con-members and their families. A program and dance will be the order of the evening's entertainment.

Only the Center Leaves are used in LUCKIES

For these are the Mildest and fully ripened for perfect smoking

We buy only the center leaves for Luckies.
Not the top leaves for they are under-developed. Not the bottom leaves for they are inferior in quality. Only the center leaves for these are truly mild and fully ripe. And that's the fine tobacco we use—to make Luckies so round, so firm, so fully packed —free from loose ends that spill out. That's why Luckies are always mild, always truly mild. And remember, "It's toasted"— for throat protection—for finer taste.

Thursday heard reports from the free dental clinic which has been maintained since November in the open air school building. Dr. Ross Bradley and Dr. John R. Bunch, members of the club's under-privileged child committee, told of the work and asked that the club do something to help buy materials for continuing the clinic.

Fifty-eight children have been treated since the clinic started. There have been 76 extractions of teeth, and 147 cavities have been filled. Twenty-two sets of teeth have been cleaned. It was brought out that local dentists have donated to these needy children $475 worth of work. Money is needed to buy materials.

The office equipment has been bought and paid for through generosity of Parent-Teacher associations of the city, the Catholic and Lutheran churches, the Business and Professional Woman's Club and other interested citizens and organizations. Another speaker on the program was Prof. H. J. Stratton, who gave a description of the provisions of the Tugwell bill, now pending in Congress.

Druggists Gather to Discuss Code

About forty druggists representing the ten counties of the 20th congressional district, gathered Thursday at the New Dunlap hotel for a meeting of the local Druggists Trade Council or Compliance Board. Several matters relative to organization under the National Drug Code were presented and discussed.

Plans were made for the collection of dues. Every drug store is assessed a dollar per year for the government at Washington and something additional to care for local expenses. Organization of the district association was completed.

Members of the Trade Council present included the president, Byron Armstrong; E. R. Lewis of Mason City, secretary; and C. D. McKinney of Mason City. The council will hold periodic meetings for consideration of whatever matters may arise in the district with reference to the drug code and the affairs of the association.

Among other matters discussed were price cutting, unfair competition, etc. President Armstrong advised all druggists to read the code carefully and follow its provisions. They were also told that the code is now the law of the land, along with the other business codes, and that these regulations will be enforced.

Discharge Jury in False Claim Case

After deliberating nearly 17 hours, a county court jury that heard evidence in the case of the People against Charles Miner on a charge of fraudulent advertising, was discharged Thursday without arriving at a verdict. Judge James M. Barnes discharged the jurors at 9 o'clock Thursday morning after they reported a hopeless deadlock.

It was reported after the jurors left the court house that they stood ten to two for conviction.

Miner was charged with dispensing false information about 16 hogs that he took to a consignment sale at Woodson, the prosecution claiming Miner said the hogs were cholera vaccinated. Miner claimed he did not represent these hogs to have been vaccinated, but that several other hogs in the same truck load were.

HOW WOMEN
CAN WIN MEN
AND MEN WIN

The Favor of Other Men

Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements get hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, yellow skin, pimples, dull eyes, bad breath, bad taste, gas, dizziness, headache. You have become an unlikable, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to run from you. But don't take salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills, laxative candies or chewing gums and expect them to get rid of this poison that destroys your personal charm. They can't do it, for they only move out the tail end of your bowels and that doesn't take away enough of the decayed poison. Cosmetics won't help at all. Only a free flow of your bile juice will stop this decay poison in your bowels. The one mild vegetable medicine which starts a free flow of your bile juice is Carter's Little Liver Pills. No calomel (mercury) in Carter's. Only fine, mild, vegetable extracts. If you would bring back your personal charm to women, start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills according to directions today. 24¢ at drug stores. Believe "something just as good" for it may gripe, loosen teeth or scald rectum. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for. © 1933, C. M. Co.

Family Joyful—Dad's
RHEUMATISM
Has Left Him

When a man so crippled with rheumatism cannot go to his daily work and suddenly finds a swift, powerful yet safe prescription that drives out pain and agony in 48 hours can you imagine the jubilant happiness of the whole family as Dad brings home his pay envelope regularly again.

Long's Pharmacy and Armstrong's Drug Stores and leading druggists everywhere call this grand prescription ALLERVIT and think so much of its mighty power to drive excess uric acid from the system that they guarantee one 85 cent bottle to overcome rheumatic pain and conquer backache, sciatica, neuritis and lumbago just as this notice states or money back—a square deal to all sufferers.

HEART TAG DAY TO BE HELD SATURDAY

Permission has been given to a representative of the Volunteers of America to hold their tenth annual "Heart" Tag day in Jacksonville on Saturday, January 20.

Miss Bess Hadden will have charge of the young people's work and finances at headquarters in the Public Library.

The Volunteers of America is an organization dedicated over thirty years ago by General and Mrs. Maud B. Booth to spiritual work among prisoners and the relief of their oft-times destitute families. "More than 170,000 children have been helped to future good citizenship through our work," said Mrs. Booth in her recent radio talk.

SHRINE MEETING FRIDAY

WHEN YOU'RE HEALTHY
YOU'RE HAPPY!

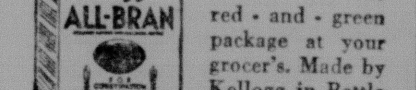

The blame for "blue" days can be laid often to common constipation. It may bring loss of appetite and energy, sallow and pimply skins, even serious illness. Correct it by eating a delicious cereal.

Research shows Kellogg's All-Brans provides "bulk" and vitamin B to relieve common constipation. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in All-Brans is much like that in leafy vegetables. Isn't this better than taking patent medicines—so often harmful?

Two tablespoonsful of All-Brans daily, relieve most types of constipation. With each meal, in chronic cases.

If not relieved this way, see your doctor. Get the red - and - green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

JACKSONVILLE WOMAN PRESENTS MacMURRAY WITH OLD DOCUMENT

Mrs. Lydia Magill has just presented MacMurray College with an interesting antique. It is a life certificate of the Illinois Conference Missionary Society signed by Peter Cartwright in 1856 and presented to Mrs. Magill's great-grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Richardson.

Mrs. Magill told an interesting story concerning Mrs. Richardson's interest in mission work. It seems that after she was well advanced in years, she attended revival services and was soundly converted. On her return home her husband was so incensed over such foolishness that he would not let her come into the house and she was forced to remain outdoors. Mrs. Magill says that there was no further trouble but her great-grandfather refused to let his wife have any money to give to her church. However, by scrimping and saving, Mrs. Richardson managed to accumulate $25.00, which was quite a sum in those days, and gave it to the Missionary Society. Because of this Mrs. Richardson was given life membership and a diploma certifying to that effect was issued to her. The signatures on the certificate are quite faded with the exception of Peter Cartwright's.

Harold Welch Has Acquired Interest in American Life

Announcement was made Thursday that Harold C. Welch of Tulsa city has acquired an interest in the American Life Insurance Company of Illinois, and will serve as one of its officers and executives. Mr. Welch, who recently resigned as vice president and agency director of the American Bankers Insurance Company here, has gone to Chicago to take up his new work. As the home offices of the American Life of Illinois are in Ottawa, Mr. Welch is expected to take up permanent residence there during the coming summer.

He has been made a vice president and member of the board of directors of the American Life, and will supervise the establishment of an industrial department which the company has never had.

Mr. Welch first entered Jacksonville's business and civil life when he came here as secretary of the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce. His abilities as an organizer showed at their best in 1925 when this city staged its Centennial program on a large and successful scale. Mr. Welch later became an official of the American Bankers and the secretaryship of the Chamber of Commerce was assumed by his brother, Roy Welch.

ARE YOU NERVOUS, WEAK?
Mrs. Edna Ogle of 707 Garden St., Peoria, Ill., says: "I was so rundown and weak I was practically a nervous wreck. I had lost sleep, had dizzy spells and headaches. I used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and gained strength, was able to sleep at night and was rid of the nervous trouble."

NO RULE CHANGES EXPECTED DURING OFFICIAL MEETING

Would Bring Back Hazards Already Eliminated From Game, William Langford, Member of Rules Committee Says.

(Note: In connection with widespread agitation for college football rule changes, an official rebuttal is presented herewith on behalf of the national rules committee, answering in particular those who advocate a return to regulations now in vogue in professional football.)

By WILLIAM S. LANGFORD
New York, Jan. 18.—(P)—Now is the "open season for shooting" the football rules and the firing is quite general and from all directions.

With so many shots being taken it is altogether likely that some may find their way into the hearts of the rules committee, but the indications are that that body will adopt no radical changes and will confine itself to simplifying the code as much as is possible.

Suggestions for changes "to make the game more interesting from the standpoint of the spectators" almost invariably would bring back hazards to players which have already been eliminated from the game, and it is predicted that the committee will accord these but scanty consideration.

One suggestion is to abolish the dead ball rule, another is to move the goal posts back from the end lines to the goal lines, either of which, if adopted, would increase the chances of injury without any proportionate compensating benefit.

The present dead ball rule was adopted in 1932 and provides that when any part (except hands or feet) of the player in possession of the ball touches the ground, the ball at once becomes dead and play ceases automatically.

This rule has almost entirely eliminated "crawling," i. e., attempts by a player to advance the ball further after he has been downed, and "piling up" or falling upon the player with the ball after it has become dead.

"Crawling" and "piling-up" used to be prolific sources of injury and it is unthinkable that any lover of the game would wish to return to the old rule.

Some critics have argued that the rules committee should give more thought to the general public who support football and by so doing make possible the whole athletic program of the colleges, by giving them more "thrills." These people ask that we adopt the rules under which the professional games are played so as to give the spectators a "real run for their money."

The main difference between the rules of the N. C. A. A. and the professional code lies in the fact that the latter failed to follow the safety measures adopted by the rules committee in 1932, including the dead ball rule mentioned above, and the prohibition of the flying block and flying tackle.

It may or may not be true that the followers of the professional game demand the retention of features which arranged solely to attract paying patrons, amateur sports are primarily for the benefit and enjoyment of the players themselves and the functions of the rule makers of the two are almost as wide apart as the poles.

These rules are designed to meet the requirements (a) of college players ranging from 17-23 years of age and (b) (with modifications) of school players ranging from 15-19 years of age.

The number of those playing under these rules has been variously estimated, but is conservative to place them in excess of 500,000.

When we contrast this with possible 1,000 professional players, ranging from 23-27 years of age, most of them have had the benefit of years of school and college training and experience, we must see that there is no common ground and no reason whatsoever for uniformity in the playing rules.

Again there is the perennial demand from some quarters that the goal posts be restored to the goal lines in order "to encourage field goal kicking." It is difficult for the writer to visualize any appreciable increase in the number of field goals "if the posts were restored to their former position" for the reason that field goal kicking, either by drop or placekick, has lost its popularity with many coaches and the play is seldom tried even from the most favorable positions on the field.

The goal posts were moved to the ends of the field-of-play because when they were located on the goal lines they formed obstructions which not only unfairly interfered with play but were a source of grave danger to the players, actually causing a number of serious injuries.

The committee is hardly likely to adopt reactionary measures by putting back onto the play field fixed obstructions into which players run or be thrown with great violence. No matter how much padding might be placed around the uprights, the potential danger of serious injury would be ever-present.

Married Flirts

by MABEL McELLIOTT

along, and he was thankful just to have his dear ones gathered around him. There was Gypsy and that nice boy she'd married. Gypsy was all right. He didn't have to worry about her. A couple of years back he hadn't quite known... Gypsy had been going places with that oldish, rich man. He and Mother hadn't liked the idea. But then the thing had straightened itself out. All his worry had been for nothing. Gypsy had fallen in love. Now she was starting life as he and Mother had. There wasn't much money, of course, but the boy was young and clean and ambitious. Gypsy was taken care of...

No one would have known, watching his lined and prosaic countenance, as he sliced meat and spooned dressing, that such thoughts were his. "Some of the white meat, Bertram? I guess he thinks the second joint is choicer."

The old white china, with its gilt bands, the deep blue glasses, the rose-wreathed plates for the pudding—all, all were in their accustomed places. This was Christmas, with all the good old things as they had ever been. Morells had eaten from this china 100 years ago, thought the father gravely, and would 100 years from now, please God!

Clytie rolled in with fresh plates, rolled out again with laden ones. She was brave in a stiff new uniform today. Her crinkly hair had been "straightened" for the occasion.

Gypsy was cracking walnuts for Cousin Lou. Across the table, the girl twin squeaked joyously at some joke of Tom's. Gypsy's new gown was much admired and every one exclaimed over his or her gifts. They all felt expansive and happy. Afterward this sense of well-being would deepen into drowsiness. The younger ones would go off to coast, the elder ones would steal a nap, perhaps. But at the moment all was coziness and laughter.

Gypsy collapsed into her favorite deep chair by the fireplace, afterward.

"I didn't know I was so tired until this instant," she confessed luxuriously. "We were up until all hours. I hadn't wrapped any of my packages... and I had to trim the tree..."

Tom said he proposed a walk in half an hour or so. Did anyone want to come along? Gypsy stifled a yawn. She knew, she said, that a walk would do her worlds of good, but she wasn't going to have one. She was going to curl up on the sunroom couch and snatch 40 winks.

So the party separated, as family parties have a way of doing. The wind outside blew colder, the early dusk fell and the lamps were lighted. In the kitchen regions Clytie clattered cheerfully away with the last pans. She would don her new purple silk presently and go off to the African church in the village. The bill that Mr. Morell had given her crackled enticingly in her purse. Clytie was thankful. She experienced the Christmas spirit.

The house quieted down. Mr. Morell dozed by the fire in the living room, his wife and Cousin Lou played checkers at a table nearby and in the sunroom Gypsy, curled up under an old Paisley shawl, tried in vain to sleep. At first she had been desperately drowsy but, once she had stretched out, she had come stark awake and her conscience had begun to prick her anew.

What a fool she'd been (she thought) to let Marko talk her into this! It would only mean keeping a secret from Tom and bed never in the world understand it.

Well! she would work out the $50 with Marko—she would give him the very best she knew how to give in the way of labor—and then she'd not see him again. Marko's way of living was too insidiously easy for a young working wife. He made things so soft, so luxurious.

At long last she fell asleep to dream troubled and uncertain dreams in which Marko brought on, wearing a long beard and flourishing a big stick, threatened her with dire happenings.

She woke, trembling all over with nervousness. Tom was standing over her, his and young and vital.

"What's the matter, darling? Think you see a ghost?"

"Oh, I had such a dreadful dream!"

He put his arms around her. "Lazybones, that's what comes of eating too much dinner and going to sleep. I've walked miles. I feel great."

... ..

SHE sat up, shaking the sleep out of her eyes. "Where is everybody?"

"They're congregated in the kitchen, popping corn." Tom told her. "It's eight o'clock. Your father's talking about wanting supper."

"Supper!" Gypsy cried, appalled. "We only left the table a moment ago."

"You've lost count," Tom jibed. He pulled her to her feet.

Arm in arm, they joined the group in the kitchen. Beatrice had her red silk frock covered by a tent-like apron. She was slicing bread. Mr. Morell withdrew his head from the leebow door.

"We're scrambling for supper," he told his eldest daughter. "Come and help."

Gypsy said she couldn't eat a bite. She felt like a Strasburg goose already. But when at last the important feast was spread, she found herself nibbling at bits of things. A wing of the ravaged bird, a buttered roll.

"Oh, this hot tea is heaven, Mums! I always forget how much I love tea."

Cousin Lou beamed. "Try some of this fruit cake, Gypsy. It's Grand Aunt Mildred's recipe."

Gypsy laughed helplessly. This was Christmas, after all. She would go back to bread and milk on the morrow to make up her dietary sins.

At 10 o'clock she and Tom pulled themselves and their various belongings together.

"Night, Mums. Such a good day, darling. 'Night, Daddy. Remember you're all coming to my place next week."

"Sunday, yes," Mrs. Morell said comfortably. "I declare, I think it's too much for you, Gypsy. Better let it go."

"Nonsense. I'll expect you." There were kisses all around and then the door closed and she and Tom were in the little car together.

"Err!" Gypsy held her fur collar high. The wind was bitter now, sweeping across the flats.

Tom tucked the robe in around her. If only he'd been able to buy her that fur coat! Maybe next year...

Gypsy pushed the thought of Saturday far back in her mind. She'd have to make some excuse to Tom for not meeting him that afternoon. What should she say? She hated lies, but this was one which had to be told.

Women's Club

"Some Phases of Law Making" was the subject of Attorney Charles Ray Grunty's address last evening at the meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club held in the Blue Room of the Peacock Inn.

Mr. Grunty said: "Law is the will of the state concerning the civic conduct of those under its authority. Before law can exist we must have a community capable of having a will of its own and a clearly recognized body of rules to which the community has given character and life, either by custom or enactment."

"The nature and history of each country and state is reflected in its law. Coincident with the development, the growth, the civilization and the culture of any people or state you will find the steady growth of the principles and the practices of law. For example—one of the earliest crimes to be punished was that of stealing or interfering with the possession of an article or thing of another person. The important point was to prevent breaches of the peace not because it was desired to see a peaceful state, but because it might result in the loss of one or more able bodied fighters to the tribe. No abstract thoughts of ownership filtered through their minds, the law to deter interference with possession of another property was found solely to protect the tribe from possible loss of warriors due to breaches of the peace. Similarly, mayhem crime of disfiguring a person; used to be when a person was so injured that it made him a less valuable warrior to his king and tribe."

Law Develops.

"Law develops from two sources, religion and custom. In the earliest times custom and religion were so closely entwined that it was hard to distinguish one from the other. The early Roman law was largely technical religious rules. The Jewish law of the first five books of the Old Testament and the Ten Commandments were largely the basis of all the moral and legal codes."

"Today there are two big systems of law. Civil law which came down from the old Roman law and the English common law of England and her possessions, Canada, Austria and the United States."

"Legislation is the enacting of our rules for the guidance of the persons under the jurisdiction of the state. It is not a simple matter, but it is dangerous because it may accomplish great good, happiness, turmoil, dissension and hardship. A true legislator should be endowed with thorough knowledge of history, intimate knowledge of psychology and a foresight of a prophet."

In closing Mr. Grunty stated that, "We need legislation to keep our body of the law up to date, a living thing, worthy of our respect, worthy of our obedience, but our legislators must be free from corrupt influences, endowed with knowledge, foresight and experience, and they must exercise this power of legislation not hastily but only after mature deliberation."

Musical for the evening was furnished by Ned Donahoe who sang "Starry, Starry Night," "One Moment When I Think Upon the Maiden" by Michael Head. He was accompanied by Miss Leanna Clemons.

During the business session presided over by the president, Miss Minnie Wyatt, an invitation from the Jacksonville club was read inviting the Jacksonville club to attend a dinner on Tuesday, January 23, at the Jefferson hotel.

The next meeting will be on February 1 at which time Miss Gertrude Holmes of the History Department of MacMurray College will talk on proposed changes in our constitution. The supper committee is headed by Marjorie Kitcher, Elizabeth McCumber and Lucy Mount.

HOPS TO HORN OF BULL FOR HOUR AND HALF TO SAVE LIFE

Farmer Has Battle With Enraged Animal In Pike County

Pittsfield, Jan. 18.—Hanging for an hour and a half, one hand hooked on a nose ring and the other on one horn of a vicious bull, Melvin Lewis saved himself from the bull's attack recently, finally rolling out of reach under a granary. Lewis farms Mrs. Paul Grote's place, north of town.

He came through the experience with bruises all over his body and numerous cuts and scratches but no broken bones. The bull was shipped last Tuesday to the St. Louis market.

Lewis was driving the Jersey bull into the barn when the animal suddenly attacked him. As the bull charged, Mr. Lewis struck at it with a pitchfork, but the fork broke off, leaving him with only the handle for defense. The bull struck him on the scalp with his horns, making a bloody wound. Seemingly the smell of the blood excited the animal even more. Mr. Lewis managed to seize the bull's nose ring and one horn and hung on for more than an hour and a half, the bull meanwhile thrashing around his hold from the nose ring, so desperate had been his grasp that his hand would not open and he had to open the fingers separately and pull them loose as he lay under the granary in comparative safety from the maddened animal.

The bull charged the granary time after time, seeking it on its foundation. All the while Mr. Lewis shouted for help but was unable to draw anyone's attention. When the beast finally changed his attack to the other end of the building, Lewis, crawled out and ran to the fence, just managing to get over before the bull saw him escaping and attacked again.

Most of Lewis's clothing was in tatters and he was so covered with blood that his wife and daughter-in-law did not recognize him and were panic-stricken when they saw him near the house. Even his voice was strange to them, for he had shouted until he was hoarse. He finally convinced them of his identity, they helped him into the house and tried to make him comfortable, which was a large order since he was terribly bruised and scratched. He had no other injuries, despite the fact the bull had pawed and trampled him underfoot hundreds of times.

After Mr. Lewis escaped, the bull found his cap on the ground, tore it into scraps and trampled them into the earth. On Tuesday, the Lewis family shipped the outlaw to market from whence he has presumably landed in the Bologna barrel.

Mr. Lewis is slowly recovering from his injuries and considers himself a lucky man to be alive today.
